

CUSTOM-MADE PRODUCTS FROM THE BOND GROUP

Because every retailer does not have the same sized store or can accept off-the-shelf solutions for its chiller or refrigeration requirements, the Bond Design, Research and Development Division - part of the Bond Group - could provide the perfect answer.

The Group, one of Europe's leading specialists in the refrigeration field, has recently re-structured into six divisions, and new Design Division is able to supply everything from the original concept through to engineering development and final testing.

All parts of the process are conducted in-house by a highly skilled team and all products are then certified using the Bond EN 441 Test Cell.

The Division is fully conversant with all new technologies and always ensures that the product, not only meets today's stringent requirements, but also those of tomorrow's.

A spokesman said: "If retailers consult with us regarding how much product they wish to store, their packaging sizes, their merchandising requirements and storage temperatures, we can start a process that will deliver to them the right solution for their needs."
